An Unparalleled Flood.

A WHOLE VILLAGE SWEPT AWAY—RICHMOND AND LYNCHBURG STREETS UNDER WATER—GREAT LOSS OF LIFE—THE CHAIN BRIDGE NEAR WASHINGTON CARRIED FROM ITS FOUNDATINONS.

The particulars we receive by mail and telegraph are heartrending. No such flood has ever visited Virginia. In the course of the flood from Lynchburg to Richmond it has overflowed the town of Columbia, in Fluvanna county, and in the dead of night, while the inhabitants were unconscious of the danger that surrounded them, it swept in huge waves over the village, carrying away whole houses, submerging all that remained, and bore off fifteen persons, who were drowned. The unfortunate city of Richmond, whose history has been so rife with calamities, is agained doomed to suffer a terrible affliction. Its trade is suppressed, its people panic-striken, and made suddenly poor and homeless. Bridges of the chief railroads and their depots, gas and water works, farming houses, and whole plantations, private dwellings, and mercantile establishments, have been either completely carried away, or so immersed in the flood as to render their total destruction imminent. The village of Rocketts, near Richmond, is overrun by the flood, and the people are in the wildest excitement removing their families and property in boats to places of safety. The vessels lying in the harbor have been torn from their moorings; the street cars as they pass through the upper portion of the city are impeded by pools and lakes of water.

At Rocketts, one large warehouse containing several thousand hogsheads of tobacco in imminent danger of being swamped, has placards posted outside the windows, requesting people to assist in removing it.

Hundreds of families in Richmond have been rescued from watery graves by the aid of boats, without which they would have perished inevitably. Many clung on to trees, remained on house tops, or sought some other convenience to escape the furiously swaying element as it rushed violently over the village on its mission of ruin and destruction. Houses, when first torn from their foundations, sailed majestically on the flood for a while, then, dashed against each other with tremendous force, like high boulders of ice. Yelling groups of hackmen, women and children crying, the boatmen running from door to door crying loudly; the mob howling with excitement and every one seemed maddened with the appalling scenes around them, created a tumult of the wildest nature, a sight rarely equalled in its confusion, awe and disaster. Property to the amount of $4,000,000 worth has been destroyed in and around Richmond. Much more would have been lost had not the timely warning of Superintendent Eate of the Virginia Engineers been taken by many.

DANGER OF LYNCHBURG.

The city of Lynchburg presented a scene or wretchedness and gloom at night. The streets were here and there thronged with piles of furniture, bedding and provisions saved, perhaps, for a few hours, when the headlong flood may overtake and hurl them to destruction. There is no gas an occasional flickering and and feeble light of a lamp or candle seems to make the scene more dismal than utter darkness.

Further intelligence from Lynchburg on the 1st instant give most exciting details of the deplorable calamity. The old market there is sunk in the flood, and all its contents floating away on its surface. It has been the most sudden and destructive freshet ever known at Lynchburg. Many persons have become the victims of its fury, an incalculable amount of property has been utterly destroyed. The toll-bridge connecting the city with the county opposite gave way at 9 P. M. on Saturday and was dragged down against the new iron bridge on the Southside Railroad at the upper end of the island. This also became a wreck, and went down with the rushing flood on its destructive course. The wooden bridge over the James River was also wrecked. The island near the city, and over which the Southside Railroad runs, was submerged in water to the depth of twelve feet. Every house on this island was swept away.

Captain Goodwin, Superintendent of the railroad, lived on the island and barely succeeded in rescuing himself and family from the fury of the flood. Apprehending danger from the freshet, he ordered the removal of all the cars from the island, and personally superintended the work. By his exertions the cars were all saved, and the freight trains coming up from Petersburg stopped beyond the reach of danger. Captain Goodwin with some half a dozen hands were caught on the island by the flood and cut off from all assistance. They were compelled to seek safety by climbing to the roof of the freight house, where they remained all night, momentarily expecting the terrible fate with which the roaring flood threatened them. A few minutes after their escape the house was swept.

FURTHER ACCOUNT OF THE INUNDATION IN THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

WASHINGTON, October 2.—Further accounts come in of the ravages of the flood in the Valley of Virginia and the the upper Potomac.

The damage in the valley on the banks of the Shenandoah exceeds even the great flood of 1862.

At Harper's Ferry, where the Shenandoah and the Potomac unite, the sight was terrific in the extreme. The water rose there suddenly, and the loss of life and property is fearful to contemplate.

The water from the Shenandoah rushing into the Potomac produced a whirlpool at the juncture of the two rivers, which prevented the recovery of the unfortunates who had been carried off the banks of the Potomac.

Parties were out from Harper's Ferry all day Saturday with apparatus, ropes, boats, &c., aiding in the rescue of those whose houses had been inundated, both below and above the Ferry.

The heaviest rains seem to have been in the Valley of Virginia, and the most water in the Potomac comes from the Shenandoah river. All the bridges on the Shenandoah have been carried away, and travel has been suspended.

BETWEEN WASHINGTON AND RICHMOND.

On Friday morning a train on the Manassas road, coming toward Alexandria had just crossed the bridge on the north fork of the Shenandoah river, when the bridge was carried away with a tremendous crash.

When the train had reached the south fork of the river, they found that the bridge had already been carried away, and the train was unable either to proceed or recede; but was held in the angle formed by the two forks.

The passengers suffered great inconvenience, for where the road crosses between the forks there is little or no population. Travel between Winchester and Harper's Ferry is perilous. The water rose high enough at Harper's Ferry to cover the old Armory grounds to the depth of several feet; and fears are entertained for the safety of the Baltimore and Ohio iron railroad bridges.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company have suffered great loss from the washing away of dams and the destruction of canal banks.

The loss of life between this city and Harper's Ferry is unknown; but many families were carried off at Harper's Ferry.

Bismarck on Religion.

LETTER OF THE PRUSSIAN PREMIER.

In the New York Observer we find, from the pen of Phillip Schaff, an interesting personal account of Bismarck, who, he says, is no stranger to religious experience. King William is an honest, good-hearted old soldier, and every observer of his public conduct in this French war must have been struck with the tone of unaffected modesty, truthfulness and pious recognition of the hand of God in the events of history. I am confident that Bismarck fully shares these feelings. I know from a number of facts which I learned from his pastor (the Rev. Mr. Southron, a most earnest evangelical preacher in Berlin,) and several of his intimate friends, that whatever may have been his former life, he is now a man of decided Protestant religious convictions and irreproachable private character. But let him speak for himself:

[From a letter dated Berlin, Dec. 26, 1865.]

"MY DEAR A.—Although I am hard pressed for time, I cannot leave unanswered an interpellation which is addressed to me from an honest heart with an appeal to Christ's name. I sincerely regret if I give offence to believing Christians, but I am certain that in my position such offence is unavoidable. In the camp of my necessary political opponents there are, no doubt, many Christians who are far ahead of me on the way of salvation, and yet, on account of what on both sides belong to the earth, I must live in conflict with them. I need only appeal to what you say yourself: 'Nothing of the public life on a high eminence remains hidden.' Where is the man who, in such a position, does not give offence, justly or unjustly? I concede more than this, for your utterance that nothing remains hidden is not true. Would to God that, besides what the world knows of me, I had no other sins on my soul, for which I hope forgiveness only by trusting in the blood of Christ, (fur die ich nur im Vertrauen auf Christi Bluit Vergebunge hoffe.) * * * As a statesman, I am not even sufficiently bold, but rather timid in my feelings, because it is not easy in questions with which I have to wrestle to gain that clearness on which alone trust in God can thrive. He who calls me an unscrupulous politician does me injustice; let him first try his conscience on this battlefield. * * * * *

If I stake my life on this cause, I do it in that confidence in God which I have nursed and strengthened in long and severe conflict, but in honest and humble prayer to God."

In a letter to his wife, written from Frankfort, 1851, Bismarck confesses to a serious change of his view of the world:

"Day before yesterday I dined with ——, at Wiesbaden, and looked with a mixture of sadness and wisdom upon the theatre of former folly. May it please God to fill with his clear and strong wine that vessel in which twenty years ago the champagne of youth uselessly evaporated, leaving but empty drugs behind. Where and how may —— and Miss—— be now? How many are dead and buried with whom I then wasted away the time in courting, drinking, gambling (mit denen ich dramais liebe'te beecherte, wurfelte)! How many changes has my view of the world (Weltenschauung) undergone within the last fourteen years? How much appears to me little now, what then appeared great; how much venerable to me what I then laughed at? How many a leaf may yet bud from our inner man and worthlessly fade away till another fourteen years have passed by, if we should live till 1865?

"I cannot conceive how a man who reflects, and yet ignores God, can endure life for contempt and ennui. I do not know how I stood it formerly. If I had to live now as I did then, without God, without thee, without children, I could see no reason why I should not lay off this life like an unclean shirt. And yet most of my acquaintances are in this condition, and yet they live. If I ask, in individual cases, what justifies this or that man to continue to live, to labor, to worry himself, to intrigue and act as spy, I verily do not know.

"You must not infer from this scribbling that I feel particularly gloomy; on the contrary, I feel as if on a beautiful September day, I looked upon the leaves as they turned yellow; healthy and cheerful, yet a little sad, a little homesick, longing after the wood, the sea, the wilderness, after thee and the children—all mixed with sunset and Beethoven.

"On Saturday afternoon I rode with Rochow and Lynar to Rudesheim. There I took a bath in the Rhine and swam in moonshine, only nose and eyes above the blue waves. There is a strangely dreamy delight to lie in the water in the silent calm, warm night, to be slowly carried by the stream, to behold the moon and the stars above, the mountain topes and towered castles on the shore, and to hear nothing but the gentle splashing of one's own motion; I would like every day so to swim. Returning, I drank good wine and sat long, smoking with Lynar, on the balcony, looking at the Rhine beneath. My little Testament and the starry heavens led us to Christian conversation; I shook the Rosseauish virtue of his soul, yet without other effect but to bring him to silence. He has been spoiled in his youth by tutors and governesses, without becoming properly acquainted with his parents, and has by reason of similar education acquired views similar to my own, but found more satisfaction in them than ever I did."

John Allen Dead.

OLIVER DYER'S "WICKDEST MAN" NO MORE.

From the N. Y. Standard.

About the middle of last month we heard that John Allen had died, but, careful inquiry by reporters, assisted by Capt. Allair's police force, failed to confirm the report. Allen's brother knew nothing of it and his old associates in Water street did not believe it. We continued our inquiries and found that John Allen, did die at West Perth, Fulton county, N. Y., on Sept. 16th. His father has lived there for many years, and John went to visit him some time ago. He was taken sick and never recovered. There was no evidence of a change of heart in John. He was the same bitter disappointed man that he has been for over a year—cursing those who brought him into notoriety and then deserted him, when they could not make any more money out of his position. Some time ago he started a grocery store, corner of Batavia and Rosevelt streets in this city, and although he made money he did not find his business congenial, and drank heavily.

OLIVER DYER'S WICKEDEST MAN,

The funeral of John took place on Sunday, Sept. 13th, at West Perth, and as it was generally known that the "Wickedest Man" was dead, there was a large crowd present who were anxious to get a glimpse at the deceased. Rev. W. H. Hawley, pastor of the Baptist church of Johnstown, preached the sermon, from the text, Mat. x.26, "For there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed, and hid that shall not be known."

The death of John recalls the sensation which was produced two years ago by the story of the "Wickedest man in New York." The subject of this sketch was introduced into the world at large by a title so peculiar as to arouse universal curiosity and interest to a most marvelous degree. No wonder or monstrosity from sea or earth, procured and advertised by the Prince of Humbugs, could match the result produced by this expose of a man who, in this modern Babylon, could justly be entitled to the superlative degree of the adjective wicked. Men and and horribly fascinated at the representative of the extreme human depravity, realizing the enormity of sin and stirred with fresh impulses for the reformation of sinners.

This excitement was due to the efforts of the sensation monger, Oliver Dyer, who in order to bring himself before the public attempted the reformation of an obscure, cunning and utterly depraved dancing-house master with neither the moral or common sense attributed to him. He lived with a drunken creature whom he called his wife, and who was the mother of his son, Chester, a boy whose precocity in recitations of scripture,

THE LORD'S PRAYER AND THE CATECHISM WAS IN RIDICULOUS CONTRAST to his depraved surroundings, and was used as one of his father's trump cards.

The notoriety given to John Allen's affairs obliged him to quit his business while took advantage of his sudden fame to make money in another direction, trying to induce Arnold of the Howard Mission and Oliver Dyer to join him in his lecturing tour, making a profession of reformation and promising to cease drinking if they would agree to the partnership. Dyer promised to assist him in this matter but failed to do so, for which reason Allen would have nothing further to do with him and made demands upon christians for considerations.

Although they found that his reformation was but a pretense, it was deemed best to keep him quiet, and Dr. Ward, the President of Howard Mission, paid him a large rent for the dance-house which was used for prayer-meetings. The Wickedest Man in New York became when he discovered that Oliver Dyer had ruined his business. It was all very well to have a spiritual father theoretically, but when it came to interfere with dollars and cents—came to such a pass that the girls no longer dared to come and dance, and sailors sought other places, where, to use John's own slang,

"THE BIBLE WASN'T CRAMMED DOWN THEIR THROATS,"

the press was too much for the new convert, and he became extremely insulting to his spiritual father. But Oliver was accustomed to insults, and for every oath had a Biblical quotation, which, according to John's own testimony, "riled him like d—n." S. S. Packard, thoroughly believing that Dyer was all he represented in the moral sensation business, with his usual magnanimity brought him prominently before the public, at the same time paying him a good round price for his articles (so reported by Dyer himself.) Whether such sensationalism pays or not Mr. Packard is by this time able to tell.

John Allen is dead and buried—to use his own vernacular in regard to others, "played out," "caved in," "switched off," "passed in his checks."

Mr. Dyer, in one of his sensation articles, promised to train and educate Chester, as he has made plenty of money through Chester's father, we suppose he will keep his word.

Characteristics of the Condor.

Professor James Orton's paper at the Troy meeting of the association for the advancement of science, contained the following interesting account of this wonderful bird:

"Fifty years have elapsed since the first specimen reached Europe, yet to-day the exaggerated stories of its size and strength are repeated in many of our text books, and the very latest ornithological work leaves us in doubt as to its relations to the other vultures. No one credits the assertion of the old geographer Marco Paulo, that the condor can lift an elephant from the ground high enough to kill it by the fall; nor the story of the traveler, so late as 1830, who declared that a condor of moderate size just killed was lying before him, a single quill feather of which was twenty paces long. Yet the statement continues to be published that the ordinary expanse of a full grown condor is from fifteen to twenty feet, whereas it is very doubtful if it ever exceeds or even equals twelve feet. I have a full grown male from the most celebrated locality in the Andes, and the stretch of its wings is nine feet. Humboldt never found one to measure over nine feet; and the largest specimen which Darwin saw was 8½ feet from tip to tip. An old male in the zoological gardens of London measures eleven feet. It is not yet settled that this greatest of unclean birds is generally distinct from the other vultures. Its usual habitation is between the altitudes of 10,000 and 16,000 feet. The largest seem to make their home around the volcano of Cayambi, which stands exactly on the equator. They are most commonly seen around vertical cliffs, perhaps because their nests are there; and also because cattle are likely to fall there. Flocks are never seen except around a large carcase. It is often seen singly soaring at a great height in vast circles. Its flight is slow. It never flaps its wings in the air, but its head is always in motion, as if in search of food below. Its mouth is kept open and its tail spread.

To rise from the ground it must needs run for some distance; then it flaps its wings three times and soars away. A narrow pen is therefore sufficient to imprison it. In walking the wings trail on the ground and the head takes a crouching position. Though a carrion bird, it breathes the purest air, spending much of its time soaring three miles over the sea. Humboldt saw one fly over Chimborazo. I have seen them sailing at least one thousand feet above the crater of Pinchincha. Its gormandizing power has hardly been overstated. I have known a single condor, not

The October Elections.

Five States hold important elections on the 11th of October—Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Nebraska. Pennsylvania chooses Congressmen, Ohio, Congressmen and a Secretary of State, Supreme Judge, Comptroller, and member of the Board of Public Works, Indiana, Congressmen and a Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, Attorney General, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Judges of the Superior Court for four districts, Iowa, Congressmen and Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, Attorney General, Registrar, and Judges of the Supreme Court, and Nebraska a full State ticket and Congressmen Pennsylvania, in the year of 1868, gave a majority for Grant of 28,898, and 9,677 in favor of the Republican candidates for Congress in the same year Ohio, in 1868, gave Grant the handsome majority of 41,-190, and 17 383 Republican majority in the Congressional election, Indiana gave Grant 9,570 majority, and a Republican majority of 961 in the Congressional election, Iowa rolled up a majority for Grant of 46,359, and for her Republican candidates for Congress of 24 265, and Nebraska gave Grant 4 303 majority, and the Republican candidate for Congress 2,491 Only a Presidential election is pretty sure to call out a full Republican vote, and it is not therefore surprising that the Republican majority fell off a little in some of the States mentioned in 1869 Lacking the severe discipline of the Democrats and the ability to vote as often as do the Democrats in some localities—New York city for instance—the Republicans seldom poll a full vote in minor elections. This, of course, is not as it should be Republicans should learn by experience that hard work is necessary to success and should never relax their efforts in any event. From present indications, however, our friends throughout the States where elections are to be held this fall, expect to turn out their full strength They are working hard, and we shall be surprised if they do not achieve success in those districts where we have heretofore had a Republican majority

EMIGRATION —On the 15th of July, a war broke out between France and Prussia, which has checked almost entirely the tide of emigration that was flowing so steadily to this country from German Prussian States, yet all emigration has not ceased Last week 4 200 emigrants arrived at the port of New York, and thousands upon thousands are still coming, in order to better their prospects in life, and found homes for their families in the rich States of the southwest and northwest.

It is said that there is an unusual number of French families among the later arrivals, and that it is highly probable that there will be many more from those whose homes have been despoiled by the invading armies and who have seen the savings of years vanish in a few hours There can be but little doubt that large numbers of these people will seek in our country to retrieve their lost fortunes, which can be done so much easier and quicker than in France Our people will give them a cordial reception A large infusion of the Gallic element will be an acceptable addition to mix with the Teuton and Celt in the United States.

It is probable that the time may not be very remote when Frenchmen will be as numerous in the United States as Irishmen and Germans They will be a valuable acquisition to the vine growing districts of Western New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and California, and we should welcome and encourage such immigration to open up to civilization and agriculture that vast body of land traversed by the Pacific railroads. We have room and employment sufficient for half a million of men annually for many years to come

The Legislature of 1871.

A member of the Republican State Committee writes that the result of the recent Conference of the Republican State Committee was a mature conviction that the next Legislature will have more responsibility upon it than any one ever assembled at Harrisburg In addition to all the ordinary legislation, it will be required to pass upon the following matters

1 Congressional and State Apportionment.

The apportionment for districts in the State Legislature is required by the constitution every seven years. Both these for the first time since 1801 must be enacted by the same Legislature The same thing will not again occur until 1941 No living voter can expect ever to see that election In fact, the multiples of seven and ten only come together once in seventy years.

2 Enactment of the revised Code

During the last three years commissioners have been at work on what is called a revision of our civil code Their report will cover two-thirds of all our statute laws. This is not actually new legislation in its fullest sense But the Legislature passing upon it ought to contain the largest possible amount of brains and experience that can be procured This report is finished and will go before the next Legislature for its action

3 A Constitutional Convention

There will be a wide spread and determined demand to have a convention called to revise our fundamental law The act calling such a convention ought to be maturely considered and carefully framed. All Republicans may not favor it—but a very large majority undoubtedly do

Here than is the explanation why the State Committee regards the election to the Senate and House next winter of inestimable importance

ONE way to get notoriety is to wander away from home and, keeping very quiet, subject your friends to a great deal of misery John W Forney Jr, son of My Two Papers, both daily, has done this, and accordingly has for the first time become known to the entire United States of America. John went to New York to write up Nilsson, attired "in an old suit of clothes, with a sailor jacket and straw hat" —a rather singular costume for a gentleman of his standing he being neither a Greeley nor a Tilton to any painful extent. Having seen Nilsson, John went off to Governor's Island and stayed there five days, taking especial pains to keep his friends in ignorance of his whereabouts. The telegraph, after a suspense of forty-eight hours, informed a sympathizing world that John was missing, and he was at once paragraphed from one end of the country to the other This accomplished, John very unexpectedly turned up in Philadelphia, safe and sound and with no other evidences of his singular pilgrimage than a pair of exaggerated eyes, some unwonted trembling in his nether limbs, the sailor-jacket wrong side before his animated bust, the old hat shorn of its unnecessary brim, and a remark to the usual Philadelphia lawyer to the effect that "'s allright, yeknow" Perhaps John had better not visit New York again, unaccompanied by his excellent father or a vigilant guardian Affairs at Paris.

The result of Prussian operations thus far in front of Paris is summarised in a special dispatch from a correspondent at Versailles, who telegraphs there has been no important progress in the siege up to the 1st of Oct, and it is evident the French in Paris have fully availed themselves of the long delay in the German advance upon the capital

Arming.

A special at Boulogne sends word from Tours that all South of France are under arms Great numbers of troops have arrived at Tours within the past week from Bordeaux The towns on the Soir Angiers, Saumeur, Nantes, are crowded with soldiers and drilling goes on incessantly in towns on the Rhine from Scnes to Arrignon and have assumed the aspect of camp Bourges is in the same condition There is no thought of peace to be anywhere entertained.

Plebiscite in Rome.

The World's special telegraphs from Rome Voting on plebiscite was a perfect farce There were 48,000 ayes and but 70 nays. He declares that the Italian soldiers and paid agents, with the scum of Chelta, the Porte and the Parione voted aye, but that a vast number of the best citizens of Rome abstained from voting, some through fear that the change might not be permanent, others in obedience to the orders of the clergy It is not to be denied however that a great majority of the middle class, lawyers, merchants, and many of the nobility, voted openly and ostentatiously for annexation The city was illuminated in many parts at the end of the day, particularly in streets leading from the Pincan to Piasca. It was observed also that attempts at illumination were made in Burgo, where notes were taken Bismarck's Circular.

BERLIN, Oct. 4.

The following is an extended synopsis of the circular recently issued by Count Bismarck to representatives of other countries in Berlin, mention of which has already been made

In his circular Bismarck admits that Favre's representation of what passed at the interview may not have been intentionally wrong, because the conversation was long and many propositions were proposed and discussed Bismarck did say a new Moselle] district to be certainly protected and including the arrondisements of and Saarbrucken Chateau Salines, Saargemund, Metz and Thionville, would be demanded by Prussia But he took pains to say this might not be all the territory exacted Favre said Strasbourg was the key of the house not explaining which house, German or French Favre, in a previous correspondence, had said that he was willing to pay as a price of peace all the money France had, but he refused to listen to any territorial surrender He added that if such recession was an indispensible requirement of Prussia, negotiation was useless as it involved France in dishonor Bismarck reminded him that they were terms such as France had forced on Italy and exacted from Germany, even without a previous war, and that the honor of France was keener than that of other peoples Favre declined to recognize precedents or see how little the honor of France was concerned with the preservation of territoral thefts of Louis XIVth or of the Republic or of the first Empire The question of an armistice was only discussed at Ferrieres The statement, therefore, that I had refused an armistice at the preceeding interview is false It was agreed at the Ferrieres meeting that an armistice would be possible if France would give Prussia guarantees against delay and against destroying the advantages of the portion she had earned in the war The guarantees included the detention of the fortresses on the lines of communication and handing over of fortifications of Paris, pending negotiations or else commanding a port near the city It would be impossible for Prussia to allow Paris free intercourse with the country The city night thus have received supplies and reinforcements Favre refused their terms, yet promised to consult his colleagues in the Government at Paris

The programme he carried back and submitted, included an armistice of 15 or 20 days to permit the meeting of the Constituent Assembly and the maintenance of the military status before Paris, continuance of hostilities under certain limitations, and the surrender of Strasbourg. Toul and Bitche The refusal of these terms must convince mankind that the French Government believed their acceptance would produce peace but which was not desired by them

The French and German Forces.

It is understood the garrison of Paris now consists of 300 000 National Guards 50 000 regulars of the line, 300 000 Gardes Mobile That these regiments and battallions are drilled incessantly and it is confidently believed in the city that the army of Paris alone will at no distant day be more than able to assume the offensive with success There has been no street rioting or fighting whatever The whole German force now occupying the line before Paris consists of seven army corps numbering 23 000 besides cavalry, which will probably bring the total up to 300 000 or 340 000

The German works at Billacourt have been shelled by the Fazy gunboats on the Seire which were only driven off after a considerable slaughter of German troops There is a great deal of sickness in the German encampments

Appointments.

LONDON October 4

Mr Appleparth, one of the correspondents of the Cabinet, is to be appointed on the royal commission to inquire into the operations of contagious diseases This means that the present Ministry have been forced to give the working classes a proper representation on boards of commission appointed with reference to matters in which the masses of the people have interests and liberties at stake

Your special at Ostend sends word that the latest advices from Russia are equally hostile to and almost as contemptuous of both Germans and the French

OSTEND Oct 3

The Frankfort Gazette is publishing a series of articles by Herr Carlvogt the great German naturalist, against the annexation of Alsace and Lorraine Herr Vogt protests even against the annexation of such places as Metz and Strasbourg

French Peasantry Firing on the Germans.

The Belgian papers are filled with accounts of attacks made on scattered German outposts by the peasantry, In St Dizier, a detachment of German troops were fired and many were killed and wounded A strong force was sent to levy five hundred thousand francs for the offense, but the Mayor invited the officer commanding to burn the town saying that he neither dared nor would execute such an order

Southern Convention.

CINCINNATI, Oct 4

The Southern Convention assembled this morning at 10 o'clock, in Pike's Hall The hall has been tastefully adorned with festoons of evergreen, hung on the front of the galleries as well as around the entrance and through the stairway The U S coat of arms, with the name of States on each are placed in front of the galleries About one hundred and fifty delegates were present at the opening

The convention was called to order by R M Bishop, Vice President for Ohio of the Louisville Convention, and prayer was offered by Rev J L Robertson

Theodore Cook, chairman of the Committee of Arrangments, then introduced Geo F Davis, who welcomed the delegates to the city Hon Geo H Pendleton was then introduced and made the reception address He said

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION—My fellow-citizens have done me infinite honor to-day The civil authorities the council authorities, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade, and the people generally have commissioned me to speak to you in their behalf They have commanded me to give you most fraternal greeting, they have commanded me to say with sincerity and warmth, for which I find no fitting words, that you are their honored and most welcome guests They have commanded me to say they appreciate the honor of your presence here and that they desire to recognize by every act of courtesy and attentive and affectionate hospitality these annually recurring meetings This concourse of representative men, these delegations from every State, city, chamber of commerce and combination of business men from the Hudson to the Rio Grande, these earnest, thoughtful, learned delegates by friends of every industrial interest and advocates of every growing enterprise from the Alleghenies to the Rocky Mountains, attest the dignity of this convention and magnitude of the questions committed to its consideration Your predecessors who met in 1868 were few in numbers and the chief subject of their consideration was the ocean trade of the Atlantic cities with Europe Your members already reach many hundreds, and your debates will touch every project, material development, every intelligent industry, every facility of commercial intercourse, every plan of finance and taxation, every question of governmental economy It must be so This convention meets to consider an advance to the interests of the great Mississippi Valley I say this in no selfish or sectional sense, I say it in no narrow spirit I would limit your duties and your influence to no local lines The interests of the Missippi Valley are the centre and source of the well being of other portions of the country Its development is their growth, its prosperity their wealth, and when the hand of industry touches into life any dormant element of power which nature has hidden in its fields, mines, lakes or rivers, they grow by its activity and move under its impulse. The Mississippi Valley The very name calls up a vision of transcendent grandeur Mountains gilled with ores, valleys most brilliant with wild flowers lands teeming with cotton, rice and sugar snow-laden fields of the North shading into dusky yellow the parched and thirsty South freezing blasts of Canada melted to genial breezes in the warm embrace of fervent winds of Florida It stretches from Central Pennsylvania to the western boundary of Kansas—from the Lake of the Woods to the Gulf of Mexico—its soils are fertile, its mines productive, its forests exhaustless, its skies bright, its climate healthful God has given to it every element of wealth, every attribute beautiful, and through its whole length a great river, made of the confluent waters of every spring rivulet and stream, in all its broad expanse rolls a ceaseless flood from the frozen regions of the Arctic ices, to the golden orange groves Cheap lands and abounding breadstaffs will secure its future Ere long, hundreds of millions of people will inhabit it They will till its fertile soil, they will work its fruitful mines, they will manufacture its materials, they will bring every force of nature into co-operation with every appliance of art, and use both with every device of human ingenuity and every effort of human industry in the development of its unrivalled resources They will be an active, enterprising, self reliant, audacious people They will not submit to insolence, they will require and they will have uninterrupted communication with the Gulf of Mexico by the Mississippi river, with the Chesapeake Bay by canals, and Virginia with Sandy Hook by canals, New York with the North Atlantic by the Lakes and the St Lawrence They will reach the Pacific by the Northern Central and Southern railroads they will dig through the mountains of Virginia and import by way of Norfolk, they will thread the valleys of Kentucky and Tennessee and load ships at Charleston and Savannah they will build levees on Southern rivers and reclaim to cultivation their rich alluvia they will sweep away every embarrassment caused by restriction, or, if you prefer the word, protective system, and they will demand improvement in the burthen of taxation and benefits of currency which the most enlightened and sagacious civilization can suggest, and I would fain believe that this splendid material advancement will never forget that in the eyes of God and humanity, they are charged with the preservation of a free government, and with the maintenance, as its best guarantee of the confederated system of our father Does this consummation seem improbible? Look at the ocean telegraph at the Pacific Railroad, at the Suez Canal, at the delicate machinery which does actually supply the places of human hands, and can almost think, and who shall doubt that the Almighty has touched with living fire the inventive genius of this age, and subjugated to the control of daring and audacious man, the mysterious forces which fill the earth, sea and air We live in deeds, not years

Gentlemen, it is your work to aid this development, to set in motion those agencies which shall tend to its accomplishment This is the Southern Commercial Convention Ohio was the first fruit of its munificient, liberal, patriotic, magnanimous Virginia, eldest born of the North west, the fairest of her sisters Conscious of her own matured and matronly beauty she looks with loving pride upon their youthful bloom and vigor and in her name I bid you welcome Cincinnati is the queen of Ohio She has been throned by her industry and the dark crown which sets forever upon her lofty brow is the sign and a symbol of intelligent labor I now in her name, bid you welcome Her people are generous enough to be instructed, large enough to take within their affections every one of their countrymen In their name I bid you welcome to their homes and to their hearthstones

R W Bishop is temporary chairman, then called for committees of one from each State on permanent organization, on credentials and on rules of order of business

The Southern Commercial Convention reassembled at 3 12 p m

N P Banks, of Mass chairman of the Committee on Credentials, reported the delegates present properly accredited from twenty-five States, also from seventy five principal cities representing the commercial interest of the United States Whole number of delgates present, three hundred and fifty, all properly accredited and entitled to seats Report adopted

Col Morton chairman of the Committee on Permanent Organization, reported for President John W Garrett, of Maryland Vice Presidents Col D Wickersham, Arkansas Capt John C McCabi, Florida R B Hilton Georgia, R L Mott, Illinois J W Preston, Indiana Hon Willard Carpenter, Ky, James Bridgford Kansas Maj H S Sleeper, Louisana John H Kennard, Mississippi George E Stafford, Maryland Hon R C Holliday Missouri Gov E B Stanford, Michigan J J Newell, Massachusetts, N P Banks New York Col R P Biker North Carolina J C Mills Ohio Gov A G McBarney Pennsylvania James S Gibbons South Carolina William S Hahe Tennessee M Burns, Texas Gov J W Throckmorton, Virginia Gen Joseph R Anderson, Wisconsin, Bruce J Stevens —— Secretaries—H H Tobem William R Bower Reading Clerk—Julius F Blackburn The report was adopted

President Garnett on taking the Chair returned thanks for the honor in a few words, and said that for the first time since the terrible conflict through which the country has passed We find representatives from Southern States meeting on the soil of the so called Northern States and that the Convention welcome in terms of warmth and hospitality such as to make all feel the Union is fully restored and fraternity exists between the North and South [Prolonged applause] This grand and beautiful city appreciated her relations with the South Her geographical position is such that with enterprise on the part of her citizens her future can be made great beyond the most sanguine expectations Ohio and Norther States whose eminent representatives are present, recognize the interest of the whole people namely Building up Southern influences to effect her legislation, to build up her wasted energy should be brought to bear to improve her rivers and harbors, to construct levees on the Mississippi, to build a Southern Pacific Railroad, (Applause) This is merely doing what is due to true and enlightened selfishness To accomplish results worthy this Convention, local feelings and interests should be thrown aside and the harmony and cooperation already indicated by the assemblage should prevail At the close of the war what was more interesting than to find the great heroes of the South remaining with their country, standing by their people and prepared after illustrating their splendid manhood in war, to aid, reorganize society, strengthen the interests of those people and binding together and joining hands fraternally in our glorious Union (Applause) What examples of moral courage have been presented by heroic soldiers of the South That illustrious man that ter at and good man, Gen R E Lee, [immense applause] at the close of the war threw aside the sword, and led in spirit, personal independence and grand moral heroism in the new work that was requisite for the South [Cheers] He became a teacher in college, worked as president of a college reorganizing that knowledge is power and that the strength of the South would be largely in future in the education of her people [Applause]

But, gentlemen, recent intercourse with that distinguished man has impressed me with the breadth and nobleness of his views on other great subjects in connection with the restoration of Peace Recently he accepted the presidency of a railway, the object of which is to connect the Maryland system with the interior of the South through to Louisiana In so acting, his aim was not only to work himself but give an example to others that for the future the true policy of all would be to bend together, North, South, East and West, under one flag and common country [Cheers] Direct trade is what the South wants, not only direct routes to the East but interior, studded with manufactories, so that the cotton of the South may be made into clothing for the southern people, and the surplus products be consumed by the employes of factories The interests of the South are the Nation's interests The most thoughtful patriots recognize, that the speedy restoration of the South to all her constitutional rights, and to equality and fraternity, will give the greatest prosperity to the whole people [Applause] Legislation good for white men, would be good for black men A tariff for one race would be good for the other and generally legislation intended to promote the interest of all classes in the South, will be of the benefit to the whole country

He reverted briefly to taxation, which is one of the subjects to be considered by the Convention, and closed by expressing the regret that one better fitted for its duties had not been called to the chair

P Eggleston from the Committee on Rules and Order of Business, submitted a report which was adopted.

A resolution to change the name from Southern to National elicited considerable discussion, but was informally laid over

The Convention then adjourned till 10 o'clock to-morrow

In the evening the Tenn delegation met and appointed a committee on each topic coming before the Convention The question arose as to the manner of appointing a committee on the Southern Pacific Railroad, and diversity of interest appeared to express Finally the Chair was empowered to appoint all the committees

A resolution was adopted instructing the Committee on the Southern Pacific Railroad, to stand by the action of the Memphis and Louisville Convention in that regard

"Conscientious Christianity!"

The desperate strait to which the friends of W H Lowrie, the itinerant candidate for President Judge are reduced, is illustrated by their tactics Last week an anonymous circular was issued at Meadville and sent broadcast throughout the county Nobody was responsible for it, because nobody's signature was appended, and the fact that it emanated from a minister of the gospel who belongs to the same political party as Lowrie, and who was lately "retired" from his pastoral charge for satisfactory reasons did not appear on the surface

The circular in the main is an appeal to "conscientious Christians" to aid in defeating Douglass, who is a dreadful infidel, and thereby elect Lowrie, who is an immaculate priest of Democracy And this anonymous circular, to which the author was ashamed to put his signature, appears as a leading "editorial" in yesterday's Courier We did not hear any appeals to "conscientious Christians" from Democratic pulpits or Democratic newspapers during the war On the contrary when the identical Judge Lowrie was fulminating his anathemas against the Government from the Supreme Bench, and when the loyal clergy of the North were aiding the Union cause by patriotic exhortations from the sacred desk, our Democratic friends deprecated religious intervention as a shocking desecration, and rolled their eyes in holy horror at the appalling spectacle But now that the rebellion is put down, the war ended, the country restored to peace, they bring forward one of the very men that sought to destroy the Government, and are endeavoring to use the Christian pulpit to reward him with public office! Was it the "conscientious Christianity" of Judge Lowrie that opposed the draft, that stirred the people to sedition, and sought to "spread anarchy and terror all around?" Fie upon these appeals to "conscientious Christians" Let them first prove that Lowrie was a Union man, and Douglass a Rebel Let them show that there has not been any war and that it did not cost 300,000 lives and that it was Grant not Lee that surrendered at Appomatox! Then we, too will advise "conscientious Christians" to vote for a politician who is seeking to ride into office on the strength of his religious professions!

A SELL—During one of the late hot days, as the P & I train stopped at the Corry depot a jolly individual poked his head out of the car window and shouted "Water! water! Fifty cents for a pitcher of water!" A good-natured, but verdant man, from Greenville, excited by the prospect of helping some unfortunate out of a fainting fit, and at the same time of putting a half dollar clear into his trousers pocket, ran like a deer to the hotel, snatched the water pitcher and a tumbler off the counter, and with astonishing expedition passed both of them through the car window The gentleman with the glowing countenance who had his whisky flask on his lap, illumined his face with a gracious smile, took the pitcher and tumbler, deliberately set them both on the seat beside him, then found great difficulty in looking up that delinquent fifty cents Just as he was successful to the extent of a ten cent stamp, the cry of the conductor was heard, "All aboard" The ten cents was thrust into Mr Verdants hand, who stood aghast gazing at the glowing countenance as it whizzed away, the owner of which bowing his head, cried out, "Much obliged, and will pay the balance when I bring back the pitcher and tumbler, good bye!" Amid the jeers of the crowd Verdant muttered, "Well, if that isn't a flying brick!" At this moment he found himself taken by the arm by the hotel man, who invited him to step over and settle for that tumbler and pitcher which he had taken without leave

FUNK, JACKSON & FULLER—This enterprising firm unfurl their banners for the fall and winter campaign this morning, and send forth their proclamation Go where you will, East or West, taking all the great cities between New York and Chicago in the line of march, and you will seek in vain for any dry goods establishment where the demands of the general public in all that pertains to this line of business, are more fully and satisfactorily answered Their stock is fairly complete, whether in domestic or imported goods whether of elegant shawls cloaks or costumes linens, poplins or silks, flannels or domestics gloves hosiery or trimmings velvets, laces or embroideries of every style and grade including the richest and costliest Cleopatra might have hoist her silken sails, and spread her silver oars and floated her gilded barge right into Spring street, and effected a better toilet than that which captivated Anthony as every devotee of Fash on will testify The great war in Europe will have a tendency to enhance the price of all imported goods, as France and Germany are the principal manufacturing countries of the world, but the merchants who have had the forethought to lay in their stocks enjoy a special exemption The novelties and staples for the autumn and winter trade at Funk, Jackson & Fullers are well worthy inspection and the price list is marvelously low

PRODUCERS AND MANUFACTURERS BANK OF TITUSVILLE—The business announcement of this institution will be found in another column The capital stock is $100 000 Its business is increasing every month Its location is well adapted for the public convenience One feature we especially desire to make mention of, the array of names of stockholders they include very largely the men of solid wealth of our city In a short time this bank will open a savings department, and pay 5 per cent. to depositors Mr D H Mitchell is the President and Manager of the institution, which is equivalent to saying that the funds of the bank will be well cared for, and that its customers will receive honorable dealing Virginia Inundated.

The flood in Virginia seems to have swept through the State from the Potomac to the Roanoke with a sudden violence beyond any rise of waters of the present century The destruction of barns, mills, factories, dams, bridges, along the many streams flowing eastward, will involve a loss of many millions of dollars Land slides and deep washings on the railroads will greatly swell the amount of damage Indeed some of the lines of communication have been recommitted in a few hours to the ruinous condition in which they were left in 1865 by four years of war

This general disaster is the more deplorable because it falls on a people already greatly impoverished, at the very moment when an abundant harvest promised to usher in the return of their former prosperity Much of the grain coming to market has been carried off, and the interruption of transportation for several weeks will render the residue of the crop unavailable to its owners Add to this the temporary stoppage of the forwarding of goods purchased in the northern cities for the South and Southwest, and we have a sum total of loss and embarrassment rarely produced by a single downpour of rain

At Richmond, though every precaution had been taken to remove property subject to be submerged or floated off, the injury to buildings and merchandise has been severe Three or four hundred building of the better class were for many hours under water to the second story, and almost as many families were rendered houseless for the time The rain had not prevailed in Richmond with the violence of the storm in the mountains, and only an hour before the turbid, angry torrent came down, sweeping everything before it, the river had brawled over the rocks opposite the town in midsummer quietude and transparency

The loss of life by the flood is already reported as high as from sixty to eighty victim, and it is probable that fuller accounts will augment the list.

Elsewhere the storm which, beginning in Virginia on Thursday, has traversed the whole country, has been as yet happily unattended by any serious disaster Rain was greatly needed in almost every section of the country, for the sources of water supply had begun to fail, and the operations of husbandry had been interrupted by the long drought

THE GERMAN LANGUAGE IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS—The German language has been introduced as a branch of study in the public schools of many of the large cities in the United States The main object was to afford German pupils an opportunity to receive instruction in reading and writing the language which unites them to their families and relatives in Europe and America, as well as to enable them to avail themselves in the pursuits of practical life of the advantages offered in the possession of two languages, spoken by a very large portion of the inhabitants of our country Moreover, and no less importance is the induction of any foreign language into the higher departments of public Schools as a subject of instruction, open to all who will avail themselves of it For no man understands his own language perfectly until he is able to compare it with another" and the study of a foreign tongue, initiating the student into the history manners, and civilization of other nations, is in itself an essential discipline of the mind The two most prominent modern languages, besides the English, are the German and French Both have an eminent literature, are particularly rich in works on the civilization, political economy, sciences, and industry of our age, and especially the German is not behind any ancient language in classical literature The day cannot be far distant when the intimate and easy intercourse between the American and European continents, and the steadily increasing influx of immigration, will demonstrate the knowledge of German to be of great value to citizens of every class This object will be greatly promoted by admitting the German language into the regular course of instruction in all our public schools

THE monthly statement of the public debt, shows a further gratifying decrease in the debt, amounting for the month to something over nine millions of dollars The reduction of the debt during the year ending October 1st is $121 781,219 This fact alone is sufficient to establish the claim of the administration to the confidence of patriotic citizens everywhere The management of the public revenues must have been characterized by honesty, economy, intelligence and efficiency in order to accomplish so splendid a result as these figures indicate

NEW COUNTERFEITS—Peterson's Counterfeit Detector, for October 1st, thus notices some dangerous new counterfeits Third National Bank Philadelphia, Pa 10s The best engraved and most dangerous imitation yet issued On the right end border, near the top of the note, opposite the large fig 10 in lathe work die, are the words National Currency in very small letters On examination, it will be seen that the last C in currency is omitted in this counterfeit, making it read Curreny

National Shoe and Leather Bank, N Y 20s, imitation well done Beware of them The lettering and paper is excellent, and the only feature to excite the suspicion of the general public is the rather dingy appearance of the engraving of the Baptism of Pocahontas on the back of the notes

Farmers' National Bank, of Reading, Pa, 5s, imitations are reported to be in circulation. Look out for all Farmers' National Bank, as the town and State can be easily changed and printed from the same counterfeit plate

ONE MORE UNFORTUNATE—On Thursday night last, a woman of the town known as "Frankie," but whose real name was Kate Gavin, died in a house at the upper end of the town, and on Friday was buried a subscription having to be raised to defray the necessary funeral expenses There are some circumstances in connection with the death of this woman that are peculiarly sad, and tend to show how short and fleeting a life of this kind is—glittering and bright at first, but wormwood and bitterness and sure death in the end A little over three years ago this girl was a waiter at the Chase House in Pithole and bore a good character for virtue and respectability Young, good looking and ladylike in appearance, a bright future seemed in store for her, but the temptter came and pictured out a life of ease and pleasure in such glowing terms that she had not the force of character to resist, and consequently fell Three years of a life of shame and a pauper's burial at the hands of strangers—Pet Centre Record

THE LAMENT OF A SPRING STREET BOARDER

MR EDITOR—Sir,
I pray, what would you do,
If like me you were
One of the few
Who eat to live
But live to grieve

I do not say
I live to eat,
Thinking by day
Of naught but meat
To be worried at night
By my appetite

For I am one
Of Adam's brood
That under the sun
Am content with cheap food
Provided 'tis neat
Wholesome and sweet.

But alas I board
On the Spring street plan
Where the question not
The delight of man
Any more than his taste
For a re-dished waste

Where the butter's as strong
As your devil's key,
And hot-rolls so long
A coming much
'Tis a-d—d poor stay
Where the poultry is cooked
When the devil,
And the Boarder is booked
For an extravagant smell
The taste of a pill
That was not in his bill

Where the coffee's as thick
As gunpowder tea
The bread like a brick
Its consumers like me
All hungry and lean,
Sickly yellow and green

Advise me I pray
Mr Editor do—
For if longer I stay—
In truth I tell you
My lantern jawed face
Cannot raise to ask grace!

Growth of Petrolia, Ont.

From the Petrolia [C W] Advertiser

Less than half a dozen years since the oil wells at Petrolia were few and the village hardly commenced, while the scattered population toiled at their respective occupations, scarcely knowing each other Five years the coming December, on the occasion of a visit to this place, we had to dine at a private house, and the main street of the village had the appearance of a concession road But now hotels, business places and private residences present a pleasing appearance, and the whole population is believed to be bordering upon 4,000 The spirit of enterprise is visible in every direction, and the people are not mere worldlings, as the commodious churches, religious bodies, town hall, public halls and excellent schools prove The lock-up is seldom occupied, crime is of rare occurrence in this place and vicinity

As to oil wells, they can now be counted in groups by the score, and refineries have grown to be institutions of the place New wells are almost daily commenced, capital liberally supplied, and employment given to the masses, thus is prosperity ensured, and the spirit of progress is onward While it will be our cheerful duty to record the oil yield and development, it will be gratifying to be enabled from time to time to notice the general improvement not only of Petrolia and neighborhood, but also the whole Dominion

THE TAX ON DRAFTS AND CHECKS—The laws and regulations concerning the purchase and use of internal revenue stamps, published in pamphlet form by the Internal Revenue Bureau, are about to be revised in accordance with the recent act of Congress, making some changes in stamp taxes It seems that large numbers of letters are received at Washington from day to day, inquiring if the stamp tax upon drafts and checks is repealed on and after the 1st of October The only instruments exempted by the act of July 14, 1870, are assignments of mortgages where the instruments secured by them have been once duly stamped, receipts for money, or for the payment of a debt, and promissory notes The office rules that a memorandum such as "I O U," or "due you," or other similar memoranda given in lieu of a formal promissory note, are also exempt from the stamp tax when for a sum less than one hundred dollars, but the stamp tax on drafts, orders and checks remains unchanged.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Bear in Mind.—When disease has undermined the health and the physical system has become prostrated, a stimulant that will not only strengthen, but remove the cause, should be immediately resorted to Mental distress is also a fruitful source of the breaking down of the constitution, and the ravages of this enemy to health are truly alarming For all such maladies Hostetter's Stomach Bitters have been found unsurpassed By acting directly upon the digestive organs they remove the heavy disagreeable feeling after eating, so often complained of by persons of a delicate temperament As soon as digestion is restored, the patient finds his strength increasing, and his general health improved

Thousands of persons certify that it may be relied on in all cases of weakness or nervous debility attendant upon sedentary habits The generality of Bitters are so disagreeable to the taste that they are objectionable to a weak stomach This is not the case with Hostetter's Bitters which will be found mild and extremely pleasant Balsamic plants barks and roots contribute their restorative juices to render it soothing and strengthening Its basis is the only pure stimulant which has ever been produced, containing no fusil oil, or any other deleterious element The most careful and skilful chemists have analyzed the Bitters, and pronounce them harmless This is scientific testimony but the testimony of the hundreds of thousands who have experienced the preventive and curative effects of the great vegetable tonic and alterative of modern times is still more conclusive In Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Biliousness Nervous Complaints, Chronic Complaints and general debility it is as nearly infallible as anything in this fallible world can be

Infringement Notice.—The subscriber has learned that a certain firm in Titusville, known as "Bryan, Dillingham & Co," have commenced the manufacture of SUCKER RODS with SOCKET JOINTS This is a DIRECT INFRINGEMENT ON HIS RIGHTS, as his claim is "connecting two sections of rod by means of wedges, wedging sockets, and double coupling bolt." He does not specify any particular shaped wedge, nor of what material it shall be made All rods made as above described outside of his manufactory, are direct infringements

This, therefore is to caution Oil Operators, and all others, against buying or using any rods so made, except those of his manufacture, as by so doing they will lay themselves liable, and will be dealt with according to law WM. J INNIS

TITUSVILLE, Pa., September 21, 1870

A R WILLIAMS, Esq, Titusville, Pa.—Dear Sir We take pleasure in adding our names to the long roll of testimonials already given in advocacy of the merits of the Improved Double-Ribbed Furnace Grates

We have had them in constant use for a year, and during that time (although our furnaces represent more than five hundred feet of surface) we have not yet lost a single bar by burning out or warping

Their advantages to us, in economizing fuel, ease of management and superior durability, warrant us in recommending them as fully up, if not superior, to the merits claimed for them We would use no other Truly yours,

B E MORELAND & CO

The substitution of this Grate will generally enable the consumer to raise sufficient heat with nut coal, or even slack, when formerly the best lump was necessary, when, tan, bark, sawdust, etc, is burned it will be found on trial to be almost indispensable No change in bearers required in any furnace All orders will receive prompt attention

"CICELY."

ALKALI STATION.

Cicely says you're a poet; may be; I ain't much on rhyme;
I reckon you'd give me a hundred, and beat me every time.
Poetry!—that's the way some chaps puts up an idee,
But I take my "straight without sugar," and that's what's the matter with me.

Poetry!—just look round you—alkali, rock and sage;
Sage-brush, rock and alkali; ain't it a pretty page!
Sun in the east at morn', sun in the west at night,
And the shadow of this yer station's the only thing that moves in sight.

Poetry!—well now—Polly! Polly, run to your mam;
Run right away, my pooty! By-by! Ain't she a lamb?
Poetry!—that reminds me o' suthin' right in that suit;
Jest shet that door thar, will yer, for Cicely's ears is cute.

Ye noticed Polly—the baby? A month afore she was born,
Cicely—my old woman—was moody-like and forlorn;
Out of her head and crazy, and talked of flowers and trees;
Family man, yourself, sir? Well, you know what a woman be's.

Narvous she was, and restless—said that she "couldn't stay,"
Stay—and the nearest woman seventeen miles away.
But I fixed it up with the doctor, and he said he would be on hand.
And I kinder stuck by the shanty, and fenced in that bit o' land.

One night—the 10th of October—I woke with a chill and fright,
For the door it was standing open, and Cicely warn't in sight;
But the note was pinned on the blanket, which it said she "couldn't stay."
But had gone to visit her neighbor—seven miles away!

When and how she stampeded, I didn't wait for to see,
For out in the road, next minit, I sarted as wild as she;
Running first this way and that way, like a hound that is off the scent,
For there warn't no track in the darkness to tell me the way she went.

I've had some mighty mean moments afore I kem to this spot—
Lost on the plains in '50, drowned and almost shot;
But out on this alkali desert, a hunting a crazy wife;
Was ra'ly as on-satis-factory as anything in my life.

"Cicely! Cicely! Cicely!" I called, and I held my breath,
And "Cicely!" came from the canyon—and all was as still as death,
And "Cicely! Cicely! Cicely!" came from the rocks below,
And jest but a whisper of "Cicely!" down from them peaks of snow.

I ain't what you call religious—but I jest looked up to the sky—
And—this yer's what I 'am coming, and may be ye think I lie;
But up away to the east'ard, yallar and big and far,
I saw of a sudden rising the singlerest kind of star.

Big and yaller and dancing, it seemed to beckon to me;
Yaller and big and dancing—I never saw such a star,
Big and yeller and dancing—I never saw such a star,
And I thought of them sharps in the Bible, and I went for it then and thar.

Over the brush and the bowlders, I stumbled and pushed ahead;
Keeping the star afore me, I went wharever it led,
It might hev been for an hour, when sudden and peart and nigh,
Out of the yearth afore me that riz a baby's cry.

Listen! thar's the same music; but her lungs they are stronger now
Than the day I packed her and her mother—I'm derned if I jest know how.
But the doctor kem the next minit, and the joke o' the whole thing is
That Cis never knew what happened from that very night to this!

But Cicely says you're a poet, and may be you might some day,
Jest sling her a ryme 'bout a baby that was born in a curious way.
And see what she says; and old fellow, when you i - speak of the star, don't tell
As how 't was the doctor's lantern—for may be 't won't sound so well.

—F. Bret Harte, in the Overland Monthly for Oct

Miscellaneous.

The ridiculous jargon in use in the popular game of bate ball is quite unintelligible to the majority of newspaper readers. Here is a specimen from the report of a recent game: "Heichelrode to second on long fly to left field; steals third and home on close run to first of Raymond. Moody out on fly caught by Waterman. Link out on hot fly taken from the bat by Allison. [Cheers.] Raymond makes second on Martin's hit, and third on Burgess's high fly muffed by Atwater, and tallies on Smith's long hit to right field. Martin sent a grounder to centre field and makes third on Smith's strike to centre field. Martin and Burgess tally. Smith makes third on wild throw, and tallies. Harries makes first; sent to second by Brown's strike to first. Heichelrode out on strikes. Haaries and Brown left on bases. Side out. Dayton's, 5."

A party of respectable young Chicago ladies have formed a society for reclaiming young men, and they go about the streets nights and pick up young men who show signs of dissipation, invite them to their houses, and treat them to ice cream, chicken salad, etc., and then let them go home sober. Half the young men in town lie around on the streets nights to be taken in. One whole engine company went to one of the ladies' houses and ask- to be reclaimed.

THAT BEATS ALL IN THE BOOT AND SHOE TRADE.

GOSLINE, the well known New York Boot and Shoe dealer, will sell cheaper and better goods than any other House in the oil region. Look at a specimen of his prices:

Fine Ladies' High Cut Congress Gaiters,		$1 50
" "	Button "	2 50
" "	Laced "	2 00
Men's Congress Gaiters,		2 00
" Fine Calf Boots,		4 00

And the balance of his extensive stock will be sold in proportion to the above prices. Don't fail to call and examine for yourself the goods and prices, which will convince you that his advertisement is no humbug. You will find his well filled store, No. 19 Spring street, sign of Big Boot. Particular attention paid to custom work.

TRADE MARK

EARTH CLOSETS.

IMPORTANT TO ALL.

The Earth Closet is a perfect substitute for the WATER CLOSET. It may be used in any room, or may be substituted for the COMMON PRIVY.

It is Inodorous, Cheap and Simple.

The following letter to the Buffalo agents of the Earth-Closet Company was written by the Rev. A. H. Lewis, of Alfred Centre, New York, under date of May 3, 1870:

"I have Earth-Closet fixtures of the 'Pull-up' pattern, put up in the form of a permanent commode over a simple box which holds about one barrel, and can be emptied with a shovel whenever it is desired. The expense, beyond the cost of fixtures, was about one day's work by a carpenter, and the little lumber needed—much less than even an out-door closet of the old offensive style.

"It has been in constant use since November last by a family of four or five persons, the coal burned by the family furnishing all the earth required.

"The results may be summed up as follows: 1—About one barrel per month of superior fertilizing material. 2—The absence of all inconvenience from snow, wet, or exposure of any kind incident to an out-door closet, and of all offensive odors incident to the ordinary 'water-closet.'

"In short, after a trial of six or seven months, I can heartily recommend the 'Dry-Earth System' as being the cheapest, most effective, most convenient, and healthiest method with which I am acquainted. I would not exchange my commode for a water-closet gratis, and an out-door privy is not to be mentioned."
